

Autism Internet Modules

Post-Assessment Results for Social Skills Groups Module

User: Zachary Cartmel

You answered 6 question(s) correctly out of 6 total questions in this assessment

Assessment Details:

Question #1

Social skills groups are used

Your Answer: to teach students with ASD ways to appropriately interact with typically developing peers

Correct Answer: to teach students with ASD ways to appropriately interact with typically developing peers

Question #1 Feedback:

Although social skills groups may be used for multiple purposes, for the intention of use with individuals with ASD, they are used to teach the students ways to appropriately interact with typically developing peers.

Question #2

Social skills training can take place

Your Answer: in both school and clinical settings

Correct Answer: in both school and clinical settings

Question #2 Feedback:

The research base indicates that Social Skills Groups are effectively implemented in both a school and a clinical setting.

Question #3

Before you begin social skills training, it is important to assess the student's current level of social functioning.

Your Answer: True

Correct Answer: True

Question #3 Feedback:

True. Assessing current skills is an important step in developing target skills for a Social Skills Group in order to know where to begin instruction.

Question #4

A social skills training group is most productive when

Your Answer: there is a carefully planned format for the social skills session

Correct Answer: there is a carefully planned format for the social skills session

Question #4 Feedback:

Social Skills Groups need to have a carefully planned format to make the best use of time and generate positive outcomes.

Question #5

When teaching social skills, sometimes the skills taught need to be broken into smaller skills. This instructional strategy is called

Your Answer: Task Analysis

Correct Answer: Task Analysis

Question #5 Feedback:

Task analysis is the process of breaking down a task into its smaller, more manageable components to make a large task easier for a learner to acquire.

Question #6

It is not necessary to take generalization data on social skills that are taught in the social skills groups.

Your Answer: False

Correct Answer: False

Question #6 Feedback:

False. Assessing generalization of skill use with other people and in other environments is an important step in determining acquisition of targeted social skills.

Post-Assessment Results for Social Skills Groups Module

User: Zachary Cartmel

You answered 6 question(s) correctly out of 6 total questions in this assessment